VOL. CXXXII—No. 239. ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916. PRICE 2 CENTS

ALEXANDRIA SUBMITS PROPOSITION

ON LOCATION OF GOVERNMENT ARMOR PLANT

Presented to Secretary Daniels and the General Board of the United States Navy Today by the Citizens' Committee—Congressman Carlin Heads Delegation

Alexandria's Armor Plant Committee, consisting of upwards of seventy-five of the representative business men of the city, headed by Congressman Carlin, proceeded to Washington at ten o'clock this morning, going with automobiles, as per previous arrangement, and at eleven o'clock were granted a hearing by Secretary Daniels and the General Board of the Navy at the Army and Navy building.

Congressman Carlin submitted Alexandria's formal proposal to have the armor plant located here and in a short address called attention to the salient points contained in the printed brief which set forth the terms of the offer in full as appears below. His arguments were direct and forceful and commanded the close attention of the Secretary and members of the naval board. He was followed by Hon, J. R. Caton who also spoke in a convincing manner.

At the conclusion of the hearing Secretary Daniels informed the delegation that their proposal would be given careful consideration and complimented the city of Alexandria upon having such a representative body of men to present its claims.

After the hearing and the Alexandria delegation had departed Mr. Carlin, who with M. B. Harlow had tarried, approached Secretary Daniels and said: "Mr. Secretary, what impression has our delegation made concerning the location of the armor plant in Alexandria?" The secretary replied: "Mr. Carlin, you and the representative business men of your city have made as favorable, if not a more favorable presentation of your case as any that has appeared before me."

Mr. Harlow subsequently asked Mr. Daniels if he recalled an interview he had with him shortly after the suggestion was made that the government should have an armor plant of its own. The secretary said he remembered the interview well.

Mr. Harlow, proceeding, asked him if he recalled having told him on that occasion that he would give Alexandria's claims the closest investigation. Mr. Daniels said he did and that he intended to carry out all his promises to the letter.

The Brief.

To the Secretary of the Navy, and to the General Board of the Navy of the United States of America:

The undersigned, a committee selected by the citizens of Alexandria, Virginia, beg leave to present that city as the proper, suitable and convenient location for the proposed Armor Plant to be erected under the provisions of the Act of the Sixty-fourth Congress of the United States approved August 29th, 1916, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and for other purposes," and to submit an offer of a tract of land of any quantity up to eighty acres, as a site for said plant, free of cost to the Government of the United States, and to offer for your consideration the following brief statement of the advantages and facilities possessed by said city for the location of such a plant:

City of Alexandria, Va.

Is located seven miles south of Washington, D. C., on the Potomac River, and connected with the National Capital by 205 daily electric and steam trains between the cities. It has a population of 17,000 inhabitants within the city limits, and including its suburbs, 20,000 It has nineteen white and eighteen colored churches, practically representing all denominations of every religious faith, and has four white and three colored public schools and three denominational schools. It has an unlimited supply of pure water and is well sewered, well cleaned, and its streets modernly paved and lighted by electricity. Its sanitation and health conditions are excellent and its mortality rate 1.7 per cent. It has a large up-to-date electric plant with ample capacity to supply electric power for manufacturing and other purposes at reasonable rates, the power to be increased as occasion demands; a large municipally owned gas plant with a present capacity of 300,000 feet per day (with facilities for increasing its output as may be required), which is furnished at reasonable rates for heating, illuminating and cooking purposes. It has an adequate, efficient, up-to-date fire department, and compares favorably with other cities in proportion to its popuiation. There are no smoke laws. The city is bountifully supplied with fresh vegetables, poultry, butter, eggs and milk from the surrounding country and has a large center market for the sale of these necessaries of life, and the prices of all supplies for family consumption, including fuel, compares favorably with other cities.

Proposed Free Site.

A site of any quality of land up to eighty acres, situated within the corporate limits, of the City of Alexandria at the southeastern boundary thereof, fronting on the Potomac River approximately 2,700 feet, with a depth of water of 30 feet, and adjacent to a water front extending a mile or more accessible for Government use, and on Great Hunting Creek a frontage of approximately 1,800 feet, which can be dredged to afford wharf facilities on the south side if required.

The Southern Railway, which is the switching line for all the steam railway lines centering at Alexandria, passes through this site, thus affording both rail and water facilities. There is a sufficient depth of water on the river front to dock any vessel that can ascend the Potomac River, and the character of the soil is such as to furnish substantial and necessary foundation for the works and machinery for the proposed plant. The United States now claims approximately forty-eight acres of the land included in this site, which is in litigation, and the ownership of which is undetermned, and the remainder thereof will be donated and paid for by the citizens of Alexandria, so that the site shall be absolutely free to the Government. The individual claimants of the land now claimed by the Government will release and quit claim any and all rights asserted by them in said forty-eight acres without consideration or compensation. A plat of the proposed site is filed herewith.

Transportation Facilities.

There is direct connection and through billing arrangement with ten railways, viz: Southern Railway, Washington Southern Railway, Pennsylvania R. R., Baltimore and Ohio R. R., Seaboard Air Line Ry., Atlantic Coast Line R. R., Chesapeake and Ohio Ry., Washington and Old Dominion Railway, Norfolk and Western Ry. and Virginian Ry., and with the Washington-Virginia Electric Ry. There are five steamboat lines, viz: Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Co., connecting at Norfolk with the Old Dominion Steamship Co., for New York, and with the Merchants and Miners Transportation Co. for Boston, Providence, Savannah and Jacksonville; the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Ry. Steamboat Line, connecting at Baltimore with the Baltimore and Philadelphia Steamboat Co. for Philadelphia; the Potomac and Chesapeake Steamboat Co., for Potomac River landings; the Mt. Vernon and Marshall Hall Steamboat Co., and the Piscataway Creek Line. The steamers of all these lines land at the wharves of Alexandria for both freight and passengers and its water front is also served by cargo vessels of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, coast-wise vessels and a large fleet of small craft. The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal reaches the inland territory comprising the coal fields of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and the industrial sections immediately contiguous thereto; these facilities furnishing to the city untance and the volume of shipments of freight and commodities. The freight rates are controlled by distance and the volume of shipments, and are as reasonable as those of other cities like situated. Having both rail and water lines, it makes the city a highly competitive freight point and, as a consequence, insures reasonable freight rates.

FOLLOWED MASSA BOB.

Former Member of Army of Northern Virginia Before the Police Court.

"What is your name?" demanded Chief Goods of a silver-haired man who stood before the bar of the Police Court this morning to answer the charge of drunkeness. "Harry Lee," was the reply. "Where's your home?" was the next query. The reply was quick: "Harford county, Md., I'm no kin to Bob, but have as much sand as if I was one of his followers".

Upon being farther questioned, Lee said he came to Alexandria and drank himself drunk, having depleted his exchequer in doing so, and would now be forced to shell corn until he earned enough to pay for transportation back to his native heath.

After Officer Talbott, who had arraigned the Marylander, had stated that he found him drunk in the street, Chief Goods augmented his testimony by saying Lee had been around town for several days, and had been brought to the station house a few days ago and allowed to sleep off his drunk.

Justice Caton dismissed the prisoner with the assurance that should he reappear at the bar he would "change his scenery." Lee left after extending thanks and making promises.

CHARLOTTESVILLE MEETINGS.

Despite Chilly Weather the Tabernacle Is Filled to OverFlowing Each Night

Gypsy Smith, jr., according to "The Daily Progress," of Charlottesville, has been praising the attendance of the Alexandria women at the Prayer Meetings held in this city. Also he has been condemning the Charlottesville people for their higgardly giving.

The Sunday evening collection, Mr. Smith told them averaged only three cents per person present, "Whereas" he said, "you willingly give ten cents to get into the movies."

At the recent Episcopalian night, a Charlottesville observer said he saw infinitely more people of that creed in the tent than he had ever seen in church.

Despite the chilly weather the Tabernacle has been filled to its capacity with people being turned away each night.

SPHINX ON PENNY HILL

Another Female Stranger's Tomb Has Caused as Much Speculation as That Described in Yesterday's Gazette.

What is known as "Penny Hill" cemetery in the southwestern section of the city, was laid out in colonial days. It was for a long time the only abode of the dead in Alexandria, and for years the remains of some of the most prominent and opulent people of our historic city were interred there. As the town grew in importance and the population increased other grave yards were laid out and it finally became necessary for Alexandria to have its "Potter Feld." Interments in the old enclosure became less frequent, and in time it became the resting place of people whose relatives were unable to purchase lots in the new burial grounds.

Our English ancestors flinched at the name of "Potter's Field," and it was determined to make a charge for opening graves in the cemetery in order that it might not bear the name of the plot purchased by money Judas Iscariot cast down in the temple. It was accordingly decided to charge one penny (two cents of our money) for single lots. Hence the name "Penny Hill," which it immediately took and which is has retained until the present day.

During the past one hundred or more years strangers, paupers, negroes and bodies from morgues have been deposited there, until the enclosure has been dug over and over and the dust of hundreds of whites and blacks mingle awaiting the sound of the archangel's clarion.

There is a tomb in "Penny Hill" which for over a century has caused more speculation than the resting place of the "Female Stranger", the anniversary of whose death was mentioned in yesterday's Gazette, It is a curious conception—a monolith of red sandstone, in the shape of an old-fashioned "elbow coffin," although much larger than that ancient receptacle of the dead. It bears no inscription, nor was any ever placed upon it. Herodotus tells us that he visited the Great Pyramid of Egypt several centuries before the Christian era, and that in his day the priests knew nothing of the history of that huge monument of stone. Alexandrians have passed and repassed the curious tomb, here in our city, for over a century, and no one has been able to tell anything about it. Like the Pyramid of Gizeh, its origin is unknown.

Situated as it is in a cemetery seldom visited by strangers, it is of course unknown to them. In fact, it is unknown to the larger number of our own people. It is covered most of the year by tall grass or weeds, and those who find it generally stumble over it accidentally.

The person who placed the stone there must have been of some means, as such a marker must have been costly. That it denoted the resting place of some person of wealth is apparent, but why no inscription? This is the query which many have propounded.

There is an old story to the effect that an actress, prominent in her day, is buried beneath the stone. This is unlikely as an inscription would undoubtedly have been placed upon it to perpetuate her name.

Our old and esteemed fellow-citizen, William Phillips, who is approaching the nonagenarian milepost, when asked recently concerning this grave yard puzzle, said his mother always told him that the stone was placed over the grave by a stonecutter to mark the resting place of his wife. The woman is said to have been of the type of Xantippe, who never was in a good humor with Socrates, her husband. At times the wife of the stonecutter, while in her wrath, would tell her husband, "Should I die first, I'll haunt you."

There was a general belief in ghosts in those days. Witches, it was alleged, sailed through the air on broomsticks on moonlight nights, and the stonecutter after the death of his wife, firmly believing that the shades of the departed revisted the earth, ad libitum, and convinced that his late wife would surely come back, if possible, conceived the idea of preparing this heavy monolith which he intended placing over her remains immediately after they were lowered into the earth. He carried out his purpose and having no desire to retain her in his memory no inscription was placed upon the tomb. Death eventually overtook the stonecutter and his remains were undoubtedly placed alongside those of his wife, and the stone, wide enough to cover both bodies, has long since marked the resting place of the unhappy couple.

CARGO OF PHOSPHATE ROCK

Bull Line Steamer Jean Reaches This Port From Boca Grande, Florida

The Bull Line steamship Jean, with 4559 tons of phosphate rock for the Alexandria Fertilizer and Chemical Company, arrived yesterday from Boca Grande, Florida. The work of unloading the steamer began at once.

The vessel has upon both sides the following: "Jean, New York, U. S. A." The letters are in white and are as long as walking canes. This has been done for safety in case a German submarine suddenly emerges in the steamer's path.

The Jean is the first ship to reach this port with her name painted so conspicuously upon her sides, and reminded all who watched the work of warping her into her dock of the perilous times in which we live.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Virginia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, convened last night in Lynchburg. ALEXANDRIA'S CLAIM.

The delegation of representative Alexandrians who have been working for five months past in an effort to locate the Government armor plant here, met at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce at 10 o'clock this morning and later proceeded in a body to Washington, where they presented Alexandria's offer to the Government officials. Congressman C. C. Carlin headed the delegation and made a forceful argument before those having the location of the plant in charge, as also did Hon. J. R. Caton, to show that Alexandria is more suitable than any other place in the country for this adjunct to the Navy Department.

The Alexandrians have had much encouragement during the past few weeks, and they left in buoyant spirits. They carried with them the earnest hopes of every man, woman and child they represent. That these energetic citizens will leave no stones unturned goes without saying.

It is unnecessary for us to recapitulate what we have said on previous occasions. As soon as the suggestion was made that the government should have an armor plant of its own, the Gazette propounded the query, Why not Alexandria for the site?" The work of reclaiming Battery Rodgers Cove had barely been finished when the proposal for the plant was made. The suitability of this area and adjoining ground was shown to be ideal, and it stands today far ahead of any site offered by the many competing cities in nearly all the states of the Atlantic seaboard. We feel assured that Secretary Daniels and the General Board will weigh well the advantages Alexandria offers.

GERMAN ARROGANCE.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung says that the visit of the U-53 to America proves that German submarines are able to conduct successful cruiser warfare near our shores and that these German operations in our waters "will place in a new light the idea of a conflict with Germany, which sometimes even leading personalities in America have mentioned the threatening."

There is more to be said in extenuation of the assumptions of Germans of the present generation. They have been taught from their infancy that Germany has any rights they are bound to respect, and the utterance of this commercial paper, which carries [illegible] outside a fewbe er gardens, is calculated to produce smiles on this side of the Atlantic.

It reminds us an of a passage in Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad," in which an American youth with more patriotism than mind looked with contempt upon all the nations of the earth. The steamship Quaker City bearing the "pilgrims" was moving into the Straits of Gibraltar, and the passengers were remarking upon the impregnability of this British stronghold which guards the gateway to the Mediterranean. The American youth listened and finally observed: "One of our gunboats could come here and knock Gibraltar into the Mediterranean!"

The Fatherland, a pro-German publication of New York, is advertising a book entitled "Hindenburg's March Into London."

The old story of the German who drew a map of the world is often recalled. The Teuton used about two-thirds of his map in depicting the Fatherland. He designated the United States as a small island.

MAROON AND WHITE

The High school students are about to issue the first number, for this season, of Maroon and White, their school magazine. They are seeking the support of the business men of Alexandria. And it would seem that they are deserving of this.

Everything that is well-printed in a city rebounds to that city's credit; and especially is this true of newspapers and periodicals. Maroon and White represents the creative ability and enterprise of the young men and women who are soon to take their place in the business and professional life of the city. To refuse to help them is, in a sense, to give these qualities we have mentioned a distinct set back. There is a deeper question than the mere financial success of Maroon and White involved—it is that of the encouragement in these young men and women of the enterprise and vim which the city so vitally needs.

STILL ON THE SEARCH

Richmond Detectives Hunt for Man and Girl Who Skipped Alexandria on Motorcycle.

Detective Sergeant John Wiley reported to headquarters in Richmond yesterday that he had been unable to find any trace in that city of Charles H. Baum, of Baltimore, and Margaret E. Earehart, of Alexandria, who left here on a motorcycle August 31, and have not been heard from since. A letter, which the Richmond police recently received, from the girl's mother, stated that Baum had relatives in Richmond, and possibly had gone there. The mother of the girl, who is Mrs. Harry L. Litchford, is very solicitous for her.

She says in her letter: "The suspense is awful, and I can hardly stand it much longer. I am satisfied she was kidnapped because she seemed perfectly satisfied at home and was treated better by her stepfather than she ever was by her own father."

The girl is described as being 16 years old, five feet two inches tall, with dark brown eyes and hair. She was wearing a white middy blouse and yellow khaki riding skirt when she rode away on the motorcycle. Baum, who is said to have a wife and child in Baltimore, is described as being tall and slender, with light curly hair and wearing a soldier's yellow shirt and checked cap.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Automobile bandits held up eight restaurants in Northern Hammond, Ind., early yesterday and made their escape with about $3,000 in cash. The bandits numbered six. At each stop three remained in the machine while the other three entered the restaurant and, with a flourish of revolvers, emptied the cash register. The robbers fled across the state line into Illinois.

President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, of the State Department, kept the lights burning at Shadow Lawn, Ashbury Park, N. J., until a late hour last night while they discussed the situation created by the active operation of German submarines in American waters. The conference is expected to result in a note to Germany suggesting that a continuation of the submarine warfare so close to the shores of the United States might easily endanger the existing friendly relations between the two countries. It was pointed out by persons who talked with President Wilson that a communication somewhat similar in character and purpose was sent to Great Britain more than a year ago when a patrol of allied warships was established just outside of New York harbor.

German socialists are said to be planning to intenogate Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in regard to allegations that 200,000,000 marks was spent for newspaper propaganda in the first two years of the war. One-fifth of this sum is said to have been spent in America and large sums in Greece and Turkey. Explanations will be demanded of what value has been received.

A woman was killed, two men probably mortally wounded and a half dozen other persons less seriously hurt when the police fired a volley last night into a crowd of Standard Oil strikers and their sympathizers which was demolishing a fire engine in Bayonne, N. J. The engine had responded to an alarm and had been held up by a barricade thrown across the street by the strikers.

German casualties from the beginning of the war to the end of September were 3,556.018.

Chronic Dysentery.

"An old gentleman of this town who was almost at the point of death with chronic dysentery some time ago and had given up all hope of recovery was induced to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. One dose stopped the discharge, and after taking a few more doses he was completely cured," writes J. L. Baer, West Manchester, Pa. "Many residents of Baer's Station can testify to the truth of the above and were aware of the old gentleman's condition." Obtainable everywhere.

Modernized Chiropractic has put more so-called Incurable Diseases on the list of curables than any other drugless method known.

When applied to the study of the nature, cause and elimination of disease, it becomes a science and philosophy which is able to locate and analyze, unerringly, the cause of disease, and provides the best method known at the present time for removing the cause.

The method is original, unique, adequate, and is the most prompt in bringing about a cure. It is absolutely safe.

ARMOR PLANT

Advantages and Convenience of Location.

The location at Alexandria offers every advantage and facility that can be offered by any other location that would meet the requirements of the National Government, and possesses many advantages not to be found elsewhere. It possesses the one advantage of inestimable value in the matter of the immediate supervision and efficient and economical operation by the proper departments of the National Government, which cannot be duplicated. It is located in the shadow of the Nation's Capital, and yet sufficiently removed therefrom as to not to violate or conflict with the established general policy of beautifying and improving the sanitary conditions of the Nation's Capital, by reducing to a minimum the construction of buildings and plants not in conformity with the general plan and by the elimination of undesirable smoke, odors and other conditions incident to a manufacturing city. It is easily accessible by water and rail to the established Navy Yard, proving ground, testing plants and fortifications, which is hightly important in the general operation of the plant, and the necessary subsequent testing and proving of its product, insuring in a decided degree economy not possible under conditions where the different factors of the National defense are farther separated. It is in close proximity and easily accessible to the Washington Navy Yard and Gun Factory by both rail and water; Indian Head proving and testing grounds by water; Winthrop rifle range, where the Government owns a large area of land, by water; Fort Washington and Fort Hunt by water; Fortress Monroe and Cape Henry by rail and water; the Norfolk Navy Yard and the other navy yards on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, besides being centrally located with respect to the entire Atlantic seaboard and the ship building plants located thereon. The proximity of this location of the plant to the National Capital will insure, we believe, a thoroughly satisfactory character of supervision and control by the Navy Department, including the Ordnance and Construction Bureau, which would be much more direct, convenient and economical than could be exercised at greater distance.

Proximity to Supplies of Material.

Alexandria is advantageously located with reference to manufacturing centers furnishing material entering into the construction of the plant, and is centrally located with respect to raw material used in the manufacture of armor plate, especially pig iron, coal, coke and fluxing materials. The pig iron furnaces of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvana are located from one hundred to three hundred miles distant. The coal and coke fields of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania are located from one hundred and fifty to three hundred miles distant, and limestone and dolomite quarries are located from forty to one hundred miles distant. The distance from the source of supply of the various raw materials to Alexandria will insure favorable freight rates, at least as low as rates on like materials to any other point in the Atlantic seaboard territory.

Proximity to Skilled and Unskilled Labor.

In addition to a large amount of skilled and unskilled labor available in Alexandria and its vicinity, it is conveniently located to sections of the country from which such labor can be readily drawn and obtained. It has the record of never having had any serious labor trouble of any kind.

suitable Labor Conditions

The climate and other conditions, of health and otherwise, offer an inviting place of residence. Rents are reasonable, prices of real estate within the reach of the laboring classes, and an abundance of available buildings and building sites for the housing and location of all labor necessary to the Armor Plant. State-wide prohibition goes into effect November 1st, 1916, which, according to the history of all commonwealths where prohibition maintains, insures increased efficiency both as to skilled and unskilled labor, and the cost of living is as low, and probably lower than any other point under consideration.

Safety of Site in Time of War.

Alexandria is located approximately two hundred miles from the Atlantic Ocean, on thirty feet of water, and we submit, is the most inaccessible to an enemy of any point in the country having deep water connection with the ocean, because of:

(a)—Distance from the ocean.

(b)—Difficulty attending enemy navigation of the Potomac River.

(c)—Impossibility of submarine attack.

(d)—Proximity to Government aviation station.

(e)—Protection by present fortifications and natural facilities for impregnable defense.

(f)—Possibility of most effective mine protection.

(g)—No extraordinary provision or expense being necessary for protection, as the fortifications, sheltering the Nation's Capital, will likewise fully protect the plant.

This committee and the citizens of Alexandria, whom it represents, earnestly invite your careful investigation of the facts hereinbefore set forth, and expresses its readiness and willingness to furnish any further information desired and to render any assistance or service within its power, and will hold itself ready at any time to respond to your command.

Very respectfully submitted,

THE RAMBLER

Several times in the course of my ramblings, I have found a very old man sitting on the doorstep of a very small house facing the river. Each time he sat motionless, smoking a pipe, and with eyes fixed on the brown water flowing on to the sea.

Last night I ventured to say "Good evening." His glance lifted to mine for an instant only and then reverted back to the river. His eyes were almost incredibly youthful and luminous in the midst of his yellow wrinkled face. But he contented himself with a nod for answer.

"It's a beautiful evening," I ventured.

"Is it?" he came back with.

"You're looking at it, aren't you?" I observed.

"I am," he agreed' His voice was as dry as is the sound of leaves rustling before a stiff October wind.

I was about to turn away, hopeless of conversation, when he laughed. It was a jolly laugh and surprisingly rich considering the thin little body whence it came.

"Sit down, Boy," he said, as he made room for me on the doorstep.

We both smoked in silence, the smoke from our tobacco curling lazily upward in the still air, our shadows lying black and incongruous before us on the moonlight pavement. Presently he began:

"Me life's runnin' down same's the river—we're buddies, the river and me, except that we're different."

"How different?" I enquired.

"Life," he answered, punctuating his talk with puffs at his pipe, "is like a tin funnell. In the beginnin' of it 'tis the wide end yer at. There's lots of whom to go this way an' thataway. But as ye go on to the end it narrows and there's only one way to go and that's to the end. And there's but one thing a felly can carry with him that's worth anythin'—

"And that is?"

His reply seemed a little irrelevant until I thought it over. "Ye have to eat with yerself and drink with yerself and sleep with yerself and be lonesome with yerself, and if ye don't like to look yerself in the eye when yer shavin' yer in a right smart pickle.

"Oh", I said, at length, "you think that self-respect is the big thing in life."

His answer was decisive.

"I do! If ye have it yet needn't worry none about the next world and if there ain't no next world ye needn't worry neither."

"Why not?" I asked.

His rich chuckle became evident again.

"Well," he replied, "if there ain't no next world there won't be no you to worry."

I rose to go. He turned his little eyes up to my face.

"Did ye ever know," he asked, "that if ye grab a dog be the hind leg he can't bite ye."

"I did not," I retorted. "Why do you tell me that?"

"Bad habits, Boy," he replied, "are dogs—see that ye have holt of 'em be the hind leg."

I'm going to ramble back to the old man some day soon again.

DEMANDS UPON GREECE.

Must Surrender Fleet Dismantle Forts and Give Up Railway.

Paris, Oct. 12—Reports from Athens state that the allies have made the following demands upon Greece:

1. The Greek fleet must be handed over to the Anglo-Franco squadron.

2. The Greek coastal forts must be dismantled.

3. The railway from Piraeus (the port of Athens) to Lariza (in northern Greece) must be turned over to the allied armies.

4. The three warships Greece is permitted to retain shall be disarmed and their crews reduced two-thirds. Two of these ships were purchased by Greece from the United States, being formerly the battleships Idaho and Mississippi.

The demands, which in reality amount to an ultimatum, as a time limit is reported to have been set for Greece to comply, are said to have been presented by the commandder of the allied fleet in Greek waters, Vice Admiral DeFournet.

Greece it is said; will comply with these demands.

SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN

Germans Say They Are Compelled To Sink Captured Vessels

Berlin, Octo. 12—The German submarine campaign off the American coast, according to the firm conviction in admiralty and foreign office circles, undoubtedly is being conducted in full accordance with the recognized rules of cruiser warfare, and with the German undertakings toward the United States not to sink ships without warning, and without making adequate provision for the safety of the passengers and crews.

The decision of the American court in the case of the British steamer Appam, which was awarded to her British owners, after being taken into Norfolk by a German prize crew, makes it impracticable to send prizes into American ports.

Cured Her Children of Colds.
